The following letter was received here
Saturday, and may interest some of the many friends of the late lamented Col. J.
B. Mills:

NO MAN'S LAND, TEXAS, June 11, '02.
Col. T. M. Purnell,
Millersburg, Ky.,
My Dear Colonel: I arrived home safely yesterday evening, feeling a little under the weather, but after a quiet day at home, am proud to say, I have fully recuperated from my sojourn among you Kentucky people and elsewhere. Thinking perhaps you would like to hear from me,

I take this method of letting you know where I am. Should you have time to favor me with a reply, in my next letter
I will write you more definitely. Presume you understand.

You will confer quite a favor on me if you kindly remember me to the good people of Millersburg, and especially Major Best and Prof. Fisher, for am very gratefully indebted to them for their Kentucky hospitality, and shall always remember their many favors shown me while in your little city, both socially and financially, and do not forget to give the boys at the hotel my regards, and tell them I hope they will have a good brand for my return soon. With kindest regards to yourself and all, I beg to remain,
Yours Very Truly,
JAMES B. MILLS.

The Newest and Best.

The newest and perhaps the greatest minstrel attraction that will be seen during the coming season will make its initial bow to the public at Buffalo,
New York, August 15, under the management of the minstrel kings, Dan Quinlan and Jimmy Wall.

This is the company with which Gov.
Bowen, of Winchester, will be identified in leading roles. He will have charge of the dancing, and by his clever acting will add much to the merits of the show. During the past four years he has had wide experience in amateur circles, and has been received with such favor wherever he appeared as to bring him to the notice of the profession. He possesses a natural talent for the work,

GOV. BOWEN.

which has been developed to a remarkable degree by hard study and constant practice, and his many friends are confident that he will score a brilliant success on his first tour, and forge rapidly to the front as a leader in minstrelsy.

Mr. Bowen appeared in this city at the last Elks' minstrel entertainment in his dancing specialty and made a great hit. The company with which he is identified will appear in Paris on October 3d.

TWO TRAINS COLLIDE.

Four Men Killed and Fifteen Hurt Near Chattanooga, Tenn.

Both Engines Had Their Positions Reversed and Were Thrown Forty Feet From the Track—Passengers Not Injured.

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 13.—Four men were killed and about 15 injured, two of them fatally, in a collision between fast mail No. 1 from Nashville and the Jasper accommodation train on the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railroad Thursday afternoon between Hooker and Summit, small stations, about 12 miles from this city.

Dead—Fireman L. A. Rankin, of the accommodation train, was horribly mangled and died almost instantly. James Bernard, fireman of the mail train, was caught under the smaller engine and literally burned to death. A handful of cinders and charred flesh was all that could be found of him. Express Messenger Webb, of the fast mail, was caught under the debris and died shortly after having been removed to a place of safety. George Rollins, engineer of the accommodation train, legs crushed and large holes made in his head and side.

None of the rest of the injured is seriously hurt and the passengers escaped with a shaking up and a few bruises.

The two trains met on a curve and the passengers of the mail train could see from the car windows the approach of the accommodation. They supposed, however, that it would simply pass by them, as there is a switch at that point and not until the crash occurred were they aware of their danger. When the trains came together, the accommodation being the lighter, was entirely telescoped, the engine of the fast mail plowing its way through the cars and splintering them into kindling wood. Both engines had their positions reversed and were thrown at least 40 feet from the track.

The mail train was behind time, and the wreck, it is said, was due to the fact that one of the engineers overlooked his orders.

WEST INDIAN CAMPAIGN MEDAL.

In All About 6,800 Men Will Be Decorated For Deeds of Valor.

Washington, June 13.—The navy department has completed its compilation of the names of the officers and men who are to be decorated with the West Indian campaign medal. The list totals in round numbers 800 officers and about 6,000 enlisted men. Of this number the engagement at Santiago Bay, in which the greatest number of vessels took part, makes up the largest proportion. Schley and all the fleet officers and men will get medals and the family of Adm. Sampson will be given the one intended for the deceased admiral. A great many of these officers and men will have bars attached to their medals to show that they were also at Manzanillo Bay, or other points selected by the board of awards, as those at which an engagement worthy of a medal was fought.

The meritorious service medal will go to persons who rendered exceptional service like Blue, Ward, Hobson and Wainwright. The rest of persons to whom this medal will be given is still under consideration by the board of awards.

GERMAN CRUISER'S MISSION.

It Is Not Connected With the Pending Claim Against Venezuela.

Berlin, June 13.—The foreign office here is without details of the reported bombardment of the seaport of La Guaira, Venezuela, by the forts and Venezuelan warships in consequence of a revolutionary movement in the suburbs.

The foreign office, however, takes the occasion of this inquiry to say that the German cruisers Gazelle and Falk were ordered to La Guaira simply to safeguard German interests there, and that their presence in Venezuelan waters is in no way connected with Germany's long pending claims against Venezuela. As soon as order is restored the cruisers in question will leave Venezuela.

SWEEP BY A CYCLONE.

Three Persons Injured and Property Destroyed at Elgin, Ill.

Elgin, Ill., June 13.—Three persons injured and many hundreds of dollars' worth of property damaged are the results of a cyclone which swept Elgin and vicinity Thursday night. Hundreds of persons took refuge in cellars and out-of-way places. Charles Dane, night watchman at the watch case factory, was hurt by a falling plank. Mrs. F. Jane, of Algonquin, was buried under the ruins of a barn. Charles Spiller was cut in the breast by flying glass.

Loop the Loop.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 13.—Clarence Hamilton, a trick bicyclist, brought here from New York to "loop the loop" at the Elk's fair, fell from the giant wheel, on the inside of which he tried to steer a bicycle. He was badly hurt.

Will Visit Cambridge.

Boston, June 13.—Word was received Thursday that President Roosevelt will come here June 25. He will visit Cambridge to participate in the commencement exercises at Harvard university.

BRINGING IN MEN.

Carload of Men For the Pennsylvania Anthracite Regions.

Reading, Pa., June 14.—Another carload of workmen went through here for the coal regions. Thus far it is said the Philadelphia & Reading Co. has secured more than 1,000 men, mostly firemen, engineers and pumpmen. It was stated by an official that there is not a colliery in the Reading company's territory where the pumps are not being manned, where desired.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 14.—The work of the strikers in attempting to bring out all men who are still in the employ of coal companies goes steadily on. Their campaign against the engineers, firemen and pumpmen is nearly over, most of those men being out, and the union is now paying more attention to the fire bosses, clerks and others who have taken the places of those who quit work. Pressure is being brought to bear on them in every possible way. Quite a number of the fire bosses throughout the region have already stopped work because they had been asked to take the strikers' places, and at a meeting held here Friday afternoon about a dozen more consented to join the strikers. The labor leaders hope to have more out by Monday. The company officials are aware of the attack on the fire bosses and they are making effort to hold them.

The miners' union is now planning to expel from the organization all engineers, firemen and pumpmen who have not yet obeyed the strike order. They have been given until Saturday night to join the strikers, and if they do not quit they will be expelled and their names published throughout the region as "unfair" workmen.

The miners' leaders as a rule will not talk on the matter of boycotting, but the rank and file of the strikers openly admit that they try to boycott all men whom they look upon as being "unfair" workers.

Nothing developed here which in any way changed the situation. President Mitchell had nothing to give out regarding the West Virginia situation.

Washington, June 14.—The president, it is stated on good authority, proposes to apply directly or indirectly to congress for legislation which will enable him to meet the coal strike situation. It is understood that the president and his advisors argue that there is no law which would meet the case and settle the issues satisfactorily.

THE VOTE COUNTED.

Officers Elected By the International Typographical Union.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 14.—The canvassing board of the International Typographical union completed the count of the vote for national officers of the organization cast in the biennial election. The total number of votes cast in the election was nearly 29,000, about 70 per cent. of the entire strength of the union. Following are the officers chosen for the ensuing two years: President, James M. Lynch, Syracuse, N. Y.; first vice president, C. E. Hawkes, Chicago; third vice president, James Mulcahey, St. Louis; fourth vice president, J. F. O'Sullivan, Boston; secretary-treasurer, J. W. Bramwood, Denver; delegates to American Federation of Labor: Printers, William M. Garrett, Washington; Max S. Hayes, Cleveland; Frank Morrison, Chicago. Allied crafts, J. F. O'Sullivan, Boston. Trustees union printers' home: Printers, Thos. McCafferty, Colorado Springs; L. C. Shepard, Chicago. Allied crafts, H. H. Rogers, Chicago. Agent union printers' home, William Kennedy, Chicago. President Lynch received over two-thirds of the vote cast for president.

PAID THE PENALTY.

Perry Christian Hanged at Moundsville For Murder.

Moundsville, W. Va., June 14.—Perry Christian, white, 26 years of age was hanged in the state penitentiary Friday night at 5:13 1/2 o'clock. His neck was dislocated and death ensued in nine minutes. His remains were taken Friday night to Wellston, O., his former home, for interment. He professed religion some time before his death and went to the scaffold bravely without flinching, accompanied by Rev. D. W. Ruble, prison chaplain, and Rev. B. M. Spurr. About 40 persons witnessed the execution.

In March, 1901, Perry Christian murdered G. W. Dent near Boomer, W. Va.

Gov. Nash and Senator Foraker, of Ohio, from which state the Negro came, attempted to intercede in behalf of Christian, but Gov. White ignored their entreaties.

Visible Supply of Cotton.

New Orleans, June 14.—Secretary Hester's statement of the world's visible supply of cotton, made up from special cable and telegraph advices, shows the visible as 2,811,949, of which 1,857,949 was American cotton.

EPIDEMIC OF CHOLERA.

Alarming Situation in the Philippine Islands Reported.

In Manila Alone a Total of 277 Cases With 215 Deaths Had Occurred Up to April 19, the Date of the Report.

Washington, June 14.—A rather alarming situation with regard to the epidemic of cholera in the Philippines is set out in a report received by Surgeon General Forwood from Lieut. Col. Heiseman, at present in charge of the medical department of the army in the islands. The appearance of the disease at Manila, in March, is attributed in some quarters to vegetables coming into the islands from affected Chinese ports, and in others to the drinking of Pasig river water, foul with the sewage of the city. Lieut. Col. Heiseman says that the number of different points attacked by the epidemic and the consequent infection of many streams which are universally used for drinking and bathing and into which all foul material and garbage find their way, makes probable a large number of deaths before the rains, which ended the two great epidemics in the eighties, occur. The army, he says, is much better protected than the native population or than civilian Americans in the islands, because of the care which is exercised in supplying good food and water.

In Manila alone a total of 277 cases with 215 deaths had occurred up to April 19, the date of the report, with 453 cases and 308 deaths outside the city. In the provinces the disease attacked 22 different places. In the Camarines, at Nueva Caceres, the disease appeared, and this has been the only point where the army has suffered, two cavalrymen and an infantryman having the disease. The colored troops, the report says, naturally mix much more with the natives than the whites, drinking the water in the shacks which they visit, and eating native food, and they are thus much more liable to contract cholera. The district known as the "Farola" was the first one in Manila to be attacked. It is described by Col. Heiseman as being "Probably the most wretchedly unsanitary place in the city," and was the first and one of the heaviest sufferers in the great cholera epidemic of 1882.

Smallpox has also appeared and has been more prevalent, it is stated, this year than in any except the first, of American occupation. The wife of an army officer in Manila has been attacked by it. Vigorous measures of prevention have been instituted to attempt to check the spread of cholera. Manila has been quarantined against all other points, distilled water has been provided, house to house inspections made, chloride of lime freely used, a cholera hospital established, the foul farola burned, and 28 army medical officers have been detailed to duty with the Manila board of health. Medical officers of the army have been given practical charge of health matters in or near towns where troops are stationed.

The report on the health of the army in general shows a slight decrease in the percentage of sick. The number of deaths has increased by six. Out of a total of 36 recent deaths, dysentery has been the cause of 18.

EXPOSITION DEFICIT.

New York Congressmen Advocate An Appropriation of $500,000.

Washington, June 14.—The New York members of the house of representatives were before the house committee on appropriations to ask an appropriation of $500,000 to cover the deficit of the Buffalo exposition. Representative Alexander, of Buffalo, who spoke for the delegation, said that the shooting of President McKinley had a depressing effect on the exposition towards its close when there was the greatest expectation of large return, and that under nominal conditions there would have been a much larger income.

Two Drowned.

Chester, Pa., June 14.—Capt. Hannett Robbins, of Port Morris, N. J., and Mrs. Pluma Haines, of Camden, N. J., were drowned opposite this city by the capsizing in a hard wind of the sloop Henry S. Robbins, laden with oyster shells. Miss Lizzie Jones, of Camden, and Robert Reed and Chas. F. Burton, of Port Morris, were rescued by the United States launch Cadet.

Tickets Sold to a Hanging.

Montreal, June 14.—Thosvald Hansen was hanged here for the murder of Erick Marotte, a 3-year-old boy, last autumn, in order to obtain some change, 17 cents, which the boy was jingling in his hand. Hansen's neck was broken. Tickets of admission to the execution were openly sold at prices ranging from 50 cents to $10.

A Dinner of Welcome.

London, June 14.—A dinner of welcome was given Friday night to Jos. Wheeler and H. Clay Evans, new consul general, and ex-congressman English, of Indiana, at which many representative Americans and Englishmen were present.

Week's Business Failures.

New York, June 14.—Business failures for the week in the United States number 165, as against 153 last week, 188 in this week last year. For Canada 12 for the week, against 17 a year ago.

WIPE OUT BY FIRE.

The Business Portion of Alexander City, Ala., Destroyed.

Opelika, Ala., June 14.—The business portion of Alexander City, a place of 1,500 inhabitants, was wiped away by fire, the loss reaching at least $750,000, which the insurance will not begin to cover.

The flames began in the foundry and machine works, and the long period of hot, dry weather had well prepared the buildings of the little city for the rapid spread of the flames. A light wind was blowing, and with fierce rapidity the fire spread from building to building until the entire business portion was a seething mass of flames.

The place has no water works, and all the terror-stricken people could do was to save what little they could, and then, almost prostrate, flee from the awful heat.

Dadeville was telegraphed for dynamite so that some of the buildings could be destroyed and thus check the progress of the flames, but it arrived only to find the city a mass of ashes.

The depot of the Central of Georgia railway was burned with all its contents. The telegraph office, two hotels, post office, saloons, livery stable, practically all the stores and eight residences, together with numerous law and other offices were destroyed. On account of the fact that the telegraph and telephone offices having been destroyed, it is impossible to obtain exact information regarding the fire.

The railroad has established its telegraph lines under a tree, and appeals for help and for food are going out. The loss of valuable papers will run into the thousands of dollars.

The tracks of the Central of Georgia are so badly warped that the passenger trains east and west Friday night had to transfer.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

He Recommends a Law Creating Reciprocity With Cuba.

Washington, June 14.—President Roosevelt sent a special message to congress, reiterating former recommendations for a law creating reciprocity with Cuba. No reference was made to Gen. Wood's appropriation of Cuban funds to circulate reciprocity literature. After quoting extracts from the previous message on the subject, the president states that Thursday he received through the American minister to Cuba an earnest appeal from President Palma for "legislative relief before it is too late and (his) country financially ruined." He says the reasons for Cuban reciprocity outweigh those for reciprocity with any other country, and are consistent with "the protective system under which this country has thriven so marvelously."

He adds: "It is to our advantage as a nation that the growing Cuban market should be controlled by American producers. The events following the war with Spain, and the prospective building of the isthmian canal, render it certain we must take in the future a far greater interest than hitherto in what happens throughout the West Indies, Central America and the adjacent coasts and waters."

GEN. LEE'S DAUGHTER ARRESTED.

She Took a Seat in a Trolley Car Reserved For Negroes.

Alexandria, Va., June 14.—Miss Mary Curtis Lee, daughter of Gen. Robert E. Lee, was taken into custody, charged with violating the law affecting the Washington, Alexandria & Mt. Vernon electric road, which provides for the separation of white and colored passengers. Miss Lee was arrested on complaint of Conductor Thomas S. Chaucey and was escorted to police headquarters, where, after telling her story, she was released on her personal bond for appearance in court, should the railroad company decide to prosecute the case. Miss Lee boarded the car at Washington, and without realizing, had taken a seat in the portion reserved for colored people. She was comfortably seated, and being encumbered with several bundles, declined to move to the forward part of the car, although the conductor explained the law on the subject to her and frequently requested her to move.

Marconi's New Invention.

London, June 14.—In the course of a lecture before the royal institution of Great Britain William Marconi announced that he had invented a highly sensitive magnetic detector of electric waves by which it was possible to read about 30 words per minute in wireless telegraphy.

Pasturage For Mine Mules.

Lancaster, Pa., June 14.—Pasturage has been obtained at Coleraine, this county, for more than 3,000 mine mules from the Schuylkill coal region. Twelve hundred have already arrived and 2,400 more are on the way. The fields have been engaged for all summer.

Dinner in Honor of Gov. Taft.

Rome, June 14.—Francis McNutt, an American, who is private chamberlain to the pope, and who lives in the Pamphili palace, which belongs to Prince Doria, gave a dinner and reception to Wm. H. Taft, civil governor of the Philippines.

Safety Appliances.

Washington, June 14.—The senate committee on interstate commerce authorized a favorable report on the bill extending the safety appliance law so as to make it applicable to locomotive tenders as well as to the cars.

AN AMATEUR DETECTIVE.

A Knight of the Razor Who Showed Qualifications for the Sleuth Profession.

Sherlock Holmes has a promising rival in a barber known to the Philadelphia Record. He astonished one of his customers the other day by asking him if he were not left-handed. The man admitted that he was, and suggested that the barber had probably seen him hang up his hat.

"No," said the barber; "I have other ways of finding out such things. 'I see, too, that you are a bookkeeper.'"

"Yes," admitted the customer, "your guesses are correct. How do you know?"

"It's easy," said the barber. "In shampooing your head I noticed ink on your hair at the left temple. This ink, I concluded, must have got there from a pen resting on your left ear, which indicated that you were a person who used a pen a great deal, as only such persons use their ears as pen-racks."

"That didn't convince me that you were a bookkeeper, however, because a literary man might stick his pen behind his ear for convenience. I learned of your profession when I applied the lather. This made the ink on your hair wash out. And I discovered two shades of ink—red and black. Nobody but a bookkeeper uses red and black ink, so it was easy to class you as a bookkeeper."

"I knew you were left-handed because the ink was on the left side—the side that a left-handed writer would involuntarily use when sticking his pen back of his ear."

"Wonderful, wonderful!" said the customer. "Now suppose you stop talking for awhile, and finish shaving me."

ROUGH ON MARK TWAIN.

An Englishman's Appreciation of One of Chauncey Depew's Little Jokes.

Once upon a time Senator Depew and Mark Twain were fellow passengers on a train across the ocean. One night a dinner was given and Twain was called upon for a speech. He made a number of characteristically humorous remarks, and then sat down amid applause. Mr. Depew was next called upon, relates the Washington Post.

"Mr. Clemens and I exchanged speeches before dinner," he said, "and he has delivered mine. His is so bad that I won't disgrace him by repeating it." Then Mr. Depew sat down, while everybody laughed.

The next morning, while Mr. Clemens was pacing the deck, an Englishman came up to him.

"Mr. Clemens," he said, "I always thought that Mr. Depew was a smart man, but that speech of his which you delivered last night was certainly the worst I ever heard of."

Her Strong Point.

"Can you sing?" said the theatrical manager.

"Not the least in the world," replied the applicant for a job.

"Can you dance?"

"Not a bit."

"Then what use do you suppose, young lady, we could make of you as a member of our company?"

"You ought to see me try to do a song and dance. It's the funniest thing in the world."—Chicago Tribune.

None in Stock.

"I observe," said the literary customer, "that 'concealment, like a worm in the bud,' hath preserved the damask cheek' of these apples. That is a poetical quotation. I presume you have read Shakespeare?"

"Red Shakespeare?" echoed the apple dealer. "No, sir. That's a variety I've never heard of."—Chicago Tribune.

THE ROSEBUD INDIAN RESERVATION TO BE OPENED FOR SETTLEMENT.

A HALF MILLION ACRES OF RICH LANDS TO BE THROWN OPEN.

FINEST GRAZING AND FARMING LANDS.

DIRECT RAILROAD NOW BUILDING.

The new extension now being built by the North-Western Line to Bonesteel, S. D., brings to mind the twenty recently made with the chiefs of the warlike Sioux by which part of the famous Rosebud Reservation is to be turned over to the government and one more of the few choice tracts of public lands now remaining, be thus opened to settlement.

The land in question lies between the Missouri and Niobrara rivers and is well watered and fertile. Farm lands near the Reservation are selling at from $20 to $35 an acre, grazing lands at from $5 to $15.

The country is level or slightly rolling, consisting of black loam with clay subsoil, making the very best of farming land. It seems to suffer exceptionally little from drought.

MISS LAURA HOWARD,

President South End Ladies' Golf Club, Chicago, Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound After the Best Doctors Had Failed To Help Her.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I can thank you for perfect health to-day. Life looked so dark to me a year or two ago. I had constant pains, my limbs swelled, I had dizzy spells, and never MISS LAURA HOWARD, CHICAGO. knew one day how I would feel the next. I was nervous and had no appetite, neither could I sleep soundly nights. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, used in conjunction with your Sanative Wash, did more for me than all the medicines and the skill of the doctors. For eight months I have enjoyed perfect health. I verily believe that most of the doctors are guessing and experimenting when they try to cure a woman with an assortment of complications, such as mine; but you do not guess. How I wish all suffering women could only know of your remedy; there would be less suffering I know."—LAURA HOWARD, 113 Newberry Ave., Chicago, Ill. $5000 forfeit if above testimonial is not genuine.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all women who are ill to write her for advice. Address Lynn, Mass., giving full particulars.

CAPTURED TROOPS.

Five of the Fifth Cavalry Reported Boloed to Death.

It is Expected a General Amnesty Will Be Declared July 1.—This Will Release Filipino Prisoners on Island of Guam.

Manila, June 16.—Friendly natives in Manila say a report is current among their countrymen that the five soldiers of the 5th cavalry who were captured by the insurgents May 30 have been boloed to death near Teresa, in Morong province, Luzon. This report has not been confirmed by the American authorities of that district.

Twenty-five members of a band of insurgents who were captured while fighting with Gen. Lukban in Samar took the oath of allegiance to the United States and were subsequently released. Four members of the band were killed in the engagement which resulted in the capture of their companions. The 25 who have sworn allegiance have seen Gen. Chaffee and have promised to give him all the assistance in their power in the work of maintaining the present peace conditions in Samar.

A commission has been sent to Samar to appoint Senor Llorentes governor of the island and to establish civil government there. It is expected that a general amnesty will be declared July 1. This amnesty will result in the release of the Filipino prisoners now on the island of Guam.

The prospects in the island of Leyte for a speedy termination of the armed resistance there are bright. Since the ports of the island were closed surrenders of insurgents to the native constabulary have occurred daily.

Gen. Davis, the commander of the American forces on the island of Mindanao, has been informed by Datto Ada that two of the three Moros who murdered an American soldier named Lewis were killed in the engagement at Bazan between Moros and Americans last May and that the other murderer has disappeared.

An American sentry belonging to the engineers was badly cut with a bolo in the hands of a Moro while on duty near Vicars.

Several Dattos, under the sultan of Mindanao, have called upon Col. Frank D. Baldwin, of the 27th infantry, and have asked for American flags. This action on the part of the Dattos is considered equivalent to taking the oath of allegiance to the United States.

LOVERS' QUARREL.

Mrs. Sahlor Killed By Harry M. Ricer—He Is Killed By Another Woman.

Philadelphia, June 16.—Mrs. Rachel Sahlor, a widow, was Sunday shot and instantly killed at Coatesville, Pa., 40 miles west of here, by Harry N. Ricer, of New Castle, Pa., who was also killed by a bullet from his revolver while struggling with another woman for possession of the weapon. The tragedy, it is said, was the result of a quarrel. Ricer was regarded as Mrs. Sahlor's accepted suitor. Saturday night Ricer visited the woman and they are said to have quarreled. Mrs. Sahlor ordered him from the house and she went to the home of Mrs. Mary L. Ernest to spend the night.

Sunday Ricer appeared at the house and demanded an interview with Mrs. Sahlor. She declined to receive him and was dismissing him at the door when he drew a revolver from his pocket and shot her through the heart. He then, it is claimed, aimed the revolver at Mrs. Ernest, who grappled with him. During the struggle the pistol was discharged, the bullet taking effect in Ricer's head, killing him almost instantly. The coroner's jury found letters in Ricer's pocket signed "Alma" which indicated that he was engaged to be married to a young woman in Columbus, O.

Columbus, O., June 16.—Miss Clara Alma Lowrey, said to have been engaged to Harry N. Ricer, the murderer of Mrs. Sahlor, at Coatesville, Pa., was prostrated Sunday night when she learned of the tragedy. She said she was not engaged to Ricer, but had known him for two years and corresponded with him. She knew nothing of Mrs. Sahlor and had never heard Ricer refer to her.

THE PRINTERS' KICK.

Those in the Employ of the Government at Manila Want Pay in Gold.

Manila, June 16.—Henry C. Ide, the member of the Philippine commission who was assigned to the department of finance and justice, has received a petition from the printers in the employ of the government asking that their salaries be paid in gold or in some other established and non-fluctuating currency. In reply to this petition Mr. Ide said he thought that the conditions of which the printers complained would probably be relieved. They are now paid in Mexican silver.

Alleged Counterfeiters Arrested.
Baltimore, June 16.—United States secret service men, aided by local police, captured eight Italians, supposed to be members of a gang of counterfeiters who have operated in several parts of the country during the past few months.

Resolutions Presented to Gen. Chaffee.
Manila, June 16.—The chamber of commerce has presented to Gen. Chaffee a set of resolutions which express the regard with which Gen. Chaffee and the army in the Philippines are held by the business men of Manila.

STRIKERS AGAIN RIOTING.

Attempt to Start Electric Cars Was Cause of Demonstrations.

Pawtucket, R. I., June 16.—The presence of 700 armed men sent by Gov. Kimball to restore order had little influence except in the central parts of the city Sunday, where the soldiers formed an invincible guard, and Sunday afternoon rioting broke out anew in the suburbs and spread to the neighboring city of Central Falls. The resumption of the electric service which had been abandoned since Thursday was the signal for demonstrations at the points where neither soldiers nor police were stationed, and the character of the attacks grew worse until the traction company was forced to abandon the car service.

The disorders extended over so great an area that the troops available were unable to handle the situation, and it was said that before the usual car traffic could be resumed it will be necessary to place the city of Central Falls and parts of Cumberland, Lincoln and North Providence under military control. To do this an increase in the number of troops will be necessary. It was demonstrated that the cars could not be operated in safety under the present condition. The tracks were obstructed and cars were pelted with stones by the mobs, not only in the suburbs of this city, but in Central Falls. Missiles struck many of the employees, some of whom were injured and rolling stock was damaged.

About 3,000 people gathered around one car in Central Falls and their attitude was so threatening that a machine gun was loaded and two companies of marines were ordered to charge the crowd. The car proceeded but the line was later abandoned. The marines then marched through the city and at another point the machine gun was made ready for action when it became apparent that an outburst was imminent. Mayor Fales, of Central Falls, not having requested military protection from the governor, asked that the troops be withdrawn and this was done after two hours of service.

At a conference Sunday between Gov. Kimball, Mayor Fales and Gen. Tanner, it was decided that the militia would not be sent to Central Falls until their services were requested. The militia unintentionally invaded Central Falls to quell a disturbance and the conference was for the purpose of preventing such a repetition. No disturbance occurred in this city or elsewhere during the forenoon and the troops patrolled even a greater stretch of territory than before, in preparation for the resumption of traffic.

DEATH IN A STORM.

Fisherman Killed By Lightning—Two Churches Struck at Chicago.

Chicago, June 16.—Chicago was visited by an electrical storm Sunday afternoon which wrought death, caused a panic among 100 Sunday-school children and damaged considerable property. Three churches were struck by electric bolts, one, the Memorial German Episcopal, being destroyed.

Calvary Presbyterian church, West Congress and 42d streets, was struck while the Sunday-school services were being held. The bolt entered the steeple and tore through the ceiling, causing a panic among the children. The building caught fire, but all the children were rescued without serious injury.

During the storm lightning demolished one of the steeples of the Lady of Sorrows' church, Jackson boulevard and Albany avenue.

Joseph Killain, while resting in a fisherman's hut on the shore of Lake Calumet, was killed by lightning, and in different parts of the city while the storm was in progress many other persons received shocks.

BECAME PANIC-STRICKEN.

Earthquake Shocks and Rumbles at Syracuse, Sicily.

Syracuse, Sicily, June 16.—Strong earthquake shocks, accompanied by a sound of underground rumbles, were experienced here Saturday night. The inhabitants of Syracuse became panic-stricken. The disturbances did not effect any damage. For several days past the sky over Sicily has been overcast and the heat has been overwhelming. Shocks of earthquake are reported from other parts of the island of Sicily.

Betrothal of Prince Nicholas.

Athens, June 16.—The betrothal is announced of Prince Nicholas, the third son of King George of Greece, and the Grand Duchess Helen, daughter of Grand Duke Vladimir, of Russia.

Circus Tent Blown Down.

Sigourney, Ia., June 13.—The main tent of the Harris circus was blown down by high winds Thursday and 25 people were injured, two of them seriously. Miss Clara Campbell, aged 20, was hurt about the back and may not recover.

Strike Declared Off.

Carbondale, Ill., June 13.—The strike which has been on at the Chicago & Carlinville Coal Co.'s shaft, and which at one time threatened to involve the entire Seventh district, has been declared off.

SURRENDER OF BOERS.

It is Still Going on With the Greatest Good Will.

DeWet Was Surrounded By Thousands Boer Men, Women and Children, Who Struggled to Shake the Hand of Their Hero.

London, June 16.—Dispatches received here from South Africa show that the surrenders of Boers are proceeding with the greatest good will. The total of those who have already surrendered numbers 16,500, and the British are extending every possible kindness to the men who come in.

The appearance of Gen. DeWet at the camp at Winburg was the signal for a great display of enthusiasm. When he arrived at the camp, Gen. DeWet was at once surrounded by thousands of Boer men, women and children who struggled and clamored to shake the hand of their hero. Gen. DeWet mounted a table and delivered an address. He warmly applauded the staunch support that the women had given the burghers during the war, which, he said, had greatly encouraged the men in the field. Continuing, Gen. DeWet recommended his hearers to be loyal to the new government, and said:

"Perhaps it is hard for you to hear this from my mouth, but God has decided thus. I fought until there was no more hope of upholding our cause, and however bitter it may be, the time has now come to lay down our arms. As a Christian people, God now demands that we be faithful to our new government. Let us submit to His decision."

Neither Gen. DeWet nor Mr. Steyn, former president of the old Orange Free State, was ever wounded during the war. Gen. DeWet has not seen his wife for two years.

The repatriation committee, which has been formed to assist the Boers in returning to their farms, has a gigantic task before it. The concentration camps will be converted into supply depots to provide the returning burghers with the means to rebuild and restock their farms. The wives and families of the Boers will, if desired, be maintained at the expense of the government while the burghers are preparing the farms for their reception. Two thousand of the national scouts, who fought upon the British side during the war, will immediately be disbanded and each scout will be provided with a pony and enabled to return to his farm.

London, June 16.—A dispatch from Lord Kitchener dated Pretoria, Saturday, June 14, says that 2,594 Boers have surrendered since Thursday, June 12, and that everything is proceeding most satisfactorily.

WEST VIRGINIA STRIKE.

Effort Made to Enlist the Co-Operation of the Railroad Men.

Clarksburg, W. Va., June 16.—An effort is being made to induce the railroad men to refuse to handle coal mined in this district. Success in this would mean a complete suspension of mining. There is some little uneasiness among the operators. Organizers left this field Monday on the West Virginia Central to induce a strike among the miners of the Davis Elkins syndicate. Mother Jones and others addressed 300 hundred men Sunday at Willow Tree school house, near Monongahela. The crowd was largely composed of women, children and farmers.

ROW BOAT OVERTURNED.

Three People Drowned in Lake Huron, Near Edison Beach, Mich.

Port Huron, Mich., June 16.—During a gale Sunday afternoon Arthur Martin, aged 21, Beatrice Abraham, aged 14, and Norma Abraham, aged 7, were drowned in Lake Huron by the overturning of a row boat off Edison beach. The accident was witnessed by a number of people, but the storm was so fierce that no help could reach the young people. The storm blew up suddenly with the wind from off the shore. Martin endeavored to get the bow of his boat into the wind, but it swamped in the heavy sea. All three bodies were recovered.

LATE CONGRESSMAN CUMMINGS.

The Letter Carriers of Savannah Held Memorial Services Sunday.

Savannah, Ga., June 16.—The letter carriers of Savannah held memorial services Sunday night at St. Stephens' Episcopal church in honor of the late Congressman Amos Cummings, the letter carriers' champion. The services were under the auspices of Branch No. 578 of the National Association of Letter Carriers. The services of Mr. Cummings and his never failing friendship for the letter carriers were highly eulogized.

A "Dry" Sunday.

Dallas, Tex., June 16.—For the first time since Dallas was incorporated, nearly half a century ago, an absolutely "dry" Sunday was experienced. Everything was "closed tight," not a saloon, beer garden or other resort was open.

Imperial Limited Train Service.

Montreal, June 16.—The Canadian Pacific railway inaugurated its imperial limited train service Sunday. The train is to make the run from Montreal to Vancouver in 97 hours. The equipment is all new.

Good Advice.

"Why do you make your daughter spend so much time over her music lessons?"

"Her teacher thinks there is a great deal of promise in her voice."

"But don't you think you ought to get a disinterested opinion on that subject?"—Chicago Post.

Exceptional.

"She's a wonderfully intellectual girl," said Maud.

"How do you know?" rejoined Mamie.

"She is more anxious about how her graduation essay is going to sound than she is about how her hair is going to look."—Washington Star.

Ever Thus.

THOSE SYMPATHETIC GIRLS.

"I know Jack would not like it if he knew that I let you see his letter to me," said Mabel, "but doesn't his literary style remind you of some great author?"

"It does," answered Maude. "It makes me think of the sublime work of the author of 'Everybody's Ready Letter-Writer.'"—Detroit Free Press.

By Way of a Delicacy.
We used to see our heart's desire Ice cream and oysters take, But soon the mercenary maids Will make us order steak.

Sympathy.

Mrs. Call—How do you like your new servant girl?

Mrs. Hiram Offen—Well, she's very sympathetic.

Mrs. Call—Is she?

Mrs. Hiram Offen—Yes; every time I complain of a headache she declares she has one, too.—Philadelphia Press.

Chattel Chatter.

"What's that woman up to now?" asked the old stocking in the work basket.

"She's getting out her needle and yarn," replied the scissors.

"Well, I'll be darned," exclaimed the stocking.—Philadelphia Press.

Her Opinion.

"Some men," said Willie Wishing-ton, "act like perfect fools when they are in love."

"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne, "and a great many more do not wait even for that excuse."—Washington Star.

"I want him to grow up a truthful man."—Chicago Post.

Dangerous Ice.

When the ice man called in the morning she told him that she wouldn't take any more ice from him as she could get it much cheaper from another dealer. The iceman was troubled for only a moment. Then he said cheerfully:

"Indade, ma'am, but you don't want any of that ice; you can't use it for ice water, for it's been analyzed and is full of them deadly microscopes."—N. Y. Times.

What's in a Name.

Down Towne—I hired a new typewriter this morning.

Upson Downe—Why, where is she? I don't see her around.

Down Towne—When I learned that her name was Simmons, I fired her.

Upson Downe—What for?

Down Towne—Why, do you suppose I want my letters signed "per Simmons?"—Princeton Tiger.

The Musician's Revenge.

De Note (savagely)—I'll get even with that old bear yet.

Friend—How can you, a poor musician, hope to get even with an irascible old millionaire?

"He has seven daughters."

"What of that?"

"I'll write a popular song."—N. Y. Weekly.

Life Worth Living.

George—Well, life is worth living, after all.

Jack—What's happened?

George—I went to a railway station to see my sister off, and by some chance Harry Hansom was there to see his sister off, and in the rush, and noise, and confusion, we got mixed, and I hugged his sister and he hugged mine. —N. Y. Weekly.

His Kindness Explained.

A fat woman entered a crowded omnibus, and seizing hold of the rail that runs along the roof, stood on a gentleman's toes. As soon as he could extricate himself he arose and offered her his seat.

"You are very kind, sir," she said. "Not at all, madam," he replied; "it's not kindness, it's self-defense."—Tit-Bits.

Mrs. Youngthing (miserably)—I know that. B—But I'm afraid George hasn't any conscience!—Puck.

Marital Confidences.

Mrs. Benham—Don't you think I grow better looking as I grow older?

Benham—Yes, and it's really too bad you can't live as long as they did in Bible times; you might then become a veritable beauty.—N. Y. Times.

A Case in Point.

Mrs. Benham—Some people profit by the mistakes of others.

Benham—Yes. For instance, the minister who got five dollars for marrying us.—Judge.

Monetary Complications.

"It seems to be a very complicated case. Do you think you can make anything out of it, doctor?"

"Yes, I think so—about $200."—N. Y. Herald.

GEO. D. MITCHELL, — EDITOR.

OUT in Newark, N. J., a girl was fooling with some "vaccine" and gently scratched her nose, vaccinating herself. Any Paris girl "knows" better than that.

THE next governor of Indiana will be a Democrat and just before inauguration day some Indianapolis residents, formerly citizens of Kentucky, will have business in Ohio.—Georgetown News.

WE are bitterly opposed to snap meetings of any kind in the Democratic party. That is what the meeting was which was held at Frankfort lately to make a call to nominate a congressman from this district.

WHEN a man has no right to vote at all in a convention, he certainly has no right to two or more votes. Still, that was the case at the late convention held at Frankfort. Fair play, gentlemen, if you please.

THE act relating to child labor passed at the last session of the Legislature will go into effect about the middle of June. It provides that the County Judge shall have the right to say what children shall work.

THE Georgetown News, says: With such a resident as Dr. B. D. Gray, Georgetown College will not suffer. His name is Gray, he wore the Gray, and is proud of it. That's the kind of man Georgetown College needed.

THE following taken from the Winchester Democrat, is applicable to Paris: Some doctor has pretended to discover that small-pox is due to overwork. If that is true some people in Winchester have no need to be vaccinated. They'll never have it.

THE greater part of the patients in the Chicago sanitarium in which so much life was destroyed on June 9, were seeking cure of the liquor habit. What of taking opiate? Surely this tragedy should bring to a pause many who are acquiring habits difficult to shake off. Why do men and women choose slavery rather than freedom—a passing gratification rather than permanent welfare?—Lexington Democrat.

DID a dying man ever regret a temperate life? If not, then why not try to live that kind of a life, and there will be fewer regrets in one's last moments. The family will have no regrets for his life, either, when such a man comes to die, but only for his loss. There is everything but good in a glass of intoxicating liquor.

THE general public often wonders why a newspaper does not write this man up or pitch into this or that thing, and seem to think that we editors should be losing our tempers at all times. In glancing over an exchange we find the following, which is worth perusing: A man told us the other day that we did not publish all the things that happened. We should say we don't. In the first place we have others who depend on us for a living. If we published all that happened we would soon be with the angels. In order to please the people we must print only nice things about them and leave the rest to the gossip. Yes, it's a fact we don't print all the news. If we did wouldn't it make spicy reading? But this would be for one week only. The next week you would read our obituary and there would be another angel in heaven.

A CABLEGRAM says: "A wealthy woman named Elva recently died at Lisbon and left her entire property to a rooster. She was a fervid spiritualist believer in the transmigration of souls, and imagined that the soul of her dead husband had entered the rooster. She caused a special fowl house to be built and ordered her servants to pay extra attention to their 'master's' wants. The disgust of the relatives over the will caused the story to become public and a lawsuit might have followed had not one of the heirs adopted the simple expedient of having the wealthy rooster killed, thus becoming himself the next kin."

Kitchen lamps, with reflector, large No. 2 burner and chimney, everything complete, at 19c; turkey feather dusters below regular prices, 100 feathers in every duster, No. 10 size, at each 9c, No. 12 at 13c, No. 14 at 16c; two rich vases in glass vases now available to our patrons, but which in a little while will be gone. It is not necessary that we say more than that these should command your immediate attention. Next week may be too late. See them on our Bargain Table, at each 10c. Nursing bottles, 8 ounce, each 5c; camphor balls, a box 5c; petroleum jelly, perfumed, a bottle 4c; jelly molds, 5c; brass padlocks, 8c; crystal glass goblets, per set 25c; wood bowls, 13 inches across, each 3c; chair seats, each 4c; cob pipes, with stem, 2c; ice picks, each 6c; rich glass fruit or berry saucers, each 2½c; strap hinges, a pair 5c; carpenter's hammers, weight 1 pound, each 10c; coffee mills, something good, each 39c; white agate buttons, 12 dozen for 5c; goggles per pair 7c; ink, all colors in stock, a bottle at 4c; canary, mocking bird and squirrel cages, 50c and upwards; night lamp chimneys, 3 for 5c.

THE FAIR.

Many jobless railroaders can trace their downfall to passing acquaintances. Heated arguments frequently cause a coolness between friends.

The gas meter lies no oftener than it is lied about.

SPARKLING.—Try a glass of Sparkling Cherry Cobbler at O. B. Mitchell's. It'll fix you right. (80apr-tf)

THE convention of the Women's Federation of Clubs of the State held in this city last week was a howling success. What Paris needs is more public gatherings of all kinds.

VISITING CARDS.—The BOURBON NEWS office would be pleased to show you samples and submit prices on the best quality of Engraved Visiting Cards. We are prepared to get out on very short notice, the handsomest Cards in stock and of the latest Tiffany finish. Satisfaction guaranteed, or as Parker & James would say, "your money back on demand." Give us a call.

DROWNED.—While in bathing, on Sunday afternoon, up Stoner, a colored boy named Will Nichols, was drowned. Diligent search was made for the body all of Sunday afternoon and yesterday, without success. It is thought that the body became entangled in some brush. A great crowd of the colored population were on the banks of Stoner on Sunday afternoon watching the search.

Circuit Court.

The Circuit Court is still holding daily sessions in Odd Fellows' Hall, and evidence in the G. Wright murder case has been in progress for several days.

Expert testimony was given Saturday and yesterday by Dr. W. C. Ussery, of this city, and Drs. Wiley, Clarke and Sprague, of Lexington.

The grand jury has returned indictments against the following:

Ollie Steele, willful and malicious striking with deadly weapon with intent to kill.

Maggie Harris, Tom Harris, Steve Stivers, Marcia Stivers, Birdie Kellis and Lizzie Kellis, suffering a nuisance. The last named are all colored.

John Robertson and James Dunn, grand larceny.

The court granted an extension of time for the grand jury to complete their labors.

The jury in the Wright case are taking their meals at the Fordham Hotel and occupying the Odd Fellows' Hall for sleeping quarters. They are in charge of Deputy Sheriff James Burke and Special Deputy, Ollie C. Hedges.

On Sunday, the jury spent the day on the banks of Stoner. They were served dinner in the open, a la pic-nic. Some of them went in bathing, while others lounged in the shade of the large trees.

The grand jury adjourned on Friday till this morning.

CHURCH CHIMES.

Kentucky has 700 Christian church Sunday-schools and 80,000 teachers and pupils.

Elder Lloyd Darsie exchanged pulpits with Elder Dick, of North Middletown, on Sunday last.

Thursday, June 26, has been appointed by the General Presbyterian Assembly as the day for special fasting and prayer because of the "low state of piety" in the church.

The new Talmage sermons are preached by Rev. Frank De Witt Talmage, of Chicago, the son of the late Rev. T. De Witt Talmage. They have been widely published in the press of the country since his father's death and have been read with the greatest satisfaction by those who have been reading Talmage's sermons for a number of years.

CONFEDERATE NOTES.

At Columbus, O., a Confederate monument, with a soldier in bronze, was unveiled Saturday. It was the gift of Mr. W. P. Harrison, a wealthy manufacturer, of Cincinnati.

U. S. Grant Post, G. A. R. of Brooklyn, N. Y., has sent a check for $50, for the Confederate Home at Montgomery, Alabama.

LODGE NOTES.

St. John's Day, June 24th, will be celebrated by the Masons at Carlisle by giving a picnic.

At the regular meeting of Rathbone lodge, Knights of Pythias, held in their Castle Hall, Col. A. J. Lovely and Mayor Benj Perry were chosen to represent the local lodge at the grand lodge meeting, which convenes in Louisville, in October.

The Owensboro Elks have decided to erect a building to cost $25,000.

Members of the Maysville Commandery, K. T., are to organize a "San Francisco Club," to attend the next Triennial Conclave.

At a meeting of the Trustees of Kentucky University a resolution was adopted providing that any inmate of the I. O. O. F. Widows and Orphans Home who graduated with merit in the city schools of Lexington may be further educated in Kentucky University free of any charge for tuition and matriculation fee.

H. L. (Dick) Nippert, formerly of this city, is the Exalted Ruler of the Elks' Lodge at Chattanooga, Tenn. This speaks well for our former townsman, as there is no higher gift within the subordinate lodge.

What the Gas Range Did.

A constant, steady blue flame without flicker, brought the water to the boiling point in exactly ten minutes on the Gas Range. The vegetables were then placed in the vessels and the lids secured. In the meantime, the oven burners were generating a positive and intense heat in the oven. Within a few minutes the oven was sufficiently hot to receive the roast. From that time on until it was carried to the table, the housewife inspected and basted the roast four times and reduced the heat in the oven just once. That was in the beginning after the meat had received the first full force of the heat. The albumen on the surface was hardened by this process to a proper degree, and the juices therefore retained in the body of the meat. The coal range could not have done this except in a crude and unsatisfactory way. The control of the flame means everything in successfully preparing a meal.

We Think It Would.

EDITOR NEWS.—Would it not be a good idea to secure the Opera House for the arguments of the attorneys in the G. Wright trial in the Circuit Court? A large number of ladies would like to hear the speeches and the Odd Fellows' hall is far too small to accommodate the large crowd. Respectfully, "M."

DEATHS.

Robert Oden Smith, the 14-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Porter Smith, of this city, died yesterday morning, from teething. The funeral will take place at the Paris cemetery this afternoon, the services being at the grave. The parents of this bright young child have the deepest sympathy of the community, in their sad bereavement.

A keyhole with funnel attachments would fill a long-felt want.

STOCK AND CROP.

WHAT UNCLE HENRY THINKS.

"See here, you boys that's settin' 'round and findin' fault because this here old world is different just now from what it was— Say, ain't you just a bit ashamed? I'd be if I was you! Look up there at the sky; I guess it's still the same old blue; The leaves a-flutterin' on the trees are just as nice and green As any one from Adam down, I'll bet, has ever seen."

"Say, ain't the breeze that's fannin' you as sweet, I want to know, As any breeze that for your dads or their dads used to blow? The days are just as long and bright as when the land was new; Man's done a lot of things, but laws! there's lots still left to do— Why, Alexander thought he'd done the whole thing slick and flat, But Aleck left us quite a batch of jobs to tinker at."

"You think you haven't any chance? Well, back in Caesar's day I reckon there were lots of chaps looked at it just that way. But you can bet old Jule himself wa'n't growlin' round because The state of things had happened to be just the way it was! Say, ain't you just a bit ashamed to set there lookin' blue, When every day some new thing's done that you'd of liked to do?"

—S. E. Kiser, in Chicago Record-Herald.

WHY DORSEY REMAINED.

By Gwendolen Overton.

THERE was not much excuse for Dorsey. He had horrible warnings under his very eyes. He had, time and again, said what he thought about any American who would marry a Mexican girl. He knew quite well enough that it was a sin against common sense, which carried its own sure punishment. But he married a Mexican; and the best that can be said for him after that is that when the punishment came he took it like a man, and no one, not even his wife herself, ever heard him complain. He had shaken the dice himself, and he abode by the throw.

She was pretty; he was lonely—at least he thought, then, that he was, but later on he discovered what real loneliness is, the loneliness a dextrous. To be sure, there were American girls in the town, but they were totally impossible, and whatever else was to be said of Candalaria Soubieta, at least she was uncommonly well-born. Race was in every feature of her pretty little face.

Dorsey had always cherished unmitigated contempt for the Mexican way of making love. Candalaria had not. So Dorsey made love in the Mexican way—and to the uttermost. In his time he had scoffed at youths who would go to the opera and never look once at the stage, in order that they might nearly cut their necks off on their high collars, twisting their heads around to gaze at a noia seated in her parents' box. He did not now. It was flechando, a tribute to his lady, which was expected of him. He had to practice it everywhere, in the plaza, in the cathedral, in the portales. He had to stand on the sidewalk and talk to her through the gratings of a window, or, worse yet, up to her balcony. All the world might both see and hear, but she broke him to the acceptance of that. It was haciendo furso, and a custom of the land, Dorsey opined at first that it was a fool costume, but Candalaria did not understand. She explained that he must see her that way or not at all.

"But I called at your house," he objected, "before we were engaged."

"It is because we are engaged," said Candalaria, "that you may not call now."

A wit has observed that when the irresistible meets the immovable, if the immovable be a woman, the irresistible retireth from business. But only one who has observed a Mexican woman and her ways can get the full force of that. Dorsey relinquished his Anglo-Saxon prejudices against advertising sentiments and affections to an unfeeling world. He made love through the gratings and by twine-graph for the passers-by to see.

Candalaria went upon the principle that experience has taught the woman of her people, and, believing that it was well to get quite all she could in the way of devotion out of a man while he was yet her novio, since none would be forthcoming from a husband, she put Dorsey through the paces very thoroughly. She quarreled with him for no other purpose than to make him sue for her favor and eat humble pie. She was sweetness itself one moment, and abominable the next. She broke the engagement half a dozen times. Dorsey was not a simpleton. He had more than ordinary ability and good sense. With an American girl for a sweetheart he would have put up with no nonsense at all. But he was puffy in Candalaria's little hands. If you doubt the consistency of that, just go to Mexico and watch a similar case for a while.

It was, however, after the Senorita Soubieta had condescended from the glory of her high estate to wed a mere Gringo, and had become the Senora Dorsey, that Dorsey's real pleasures began. To start with, he found that he had a family made to his hand. The sisters and the cousins and the aunts of "Pinafore" were nothing to his acquired ones. They came singly, like the animals two by two, in knots and groups. They were without end. All day long they sat about the patio of the little house where he had hoped to have Candalaria to himself, crouched upon low cowhide-and-wicker chairs, wrapped in black shawls, chattering, giggling, gossiping.

Dorsey had an unhealthy feeling that it was very like a harem. But they had to be treated with respect. They were of his wife's family, and it was a family that was little less than sacred in the land. Her male relatives came too. Dorsey loathed them—worse, even, than he did the females of the tribe. (He called them that to his inmost self.) They were as irreproachable and immaculate in appearance as the females were slovenly. But if they were good for any practical thing, Dorsey had yet to discover it. It annoyed him to know that they were disposing themselves in elegant leisure about his house, drinking copas of his brandy and good wine, while he was at the office toiling for a modest livelihood. And the worst of it was that he might not even indulge in a thorough-going contempt for them. They were much better educated than he was, and not one of them but had two or three languages and accomplishments. Dorsey himself had been developed along other lines, and he was perfectly well aware that they thought him material and crude.

Now, just as Dorsey was in danger of doing something rash and asserting himself, the way was opened to him. It was the chance of his life. He knew it was, the one knocking of fortune at his door. Dorsey was in the railroad and the railroad was, of course, an American affair. He had taken the place of a native youth who had no notion of letting business interfere with the serious matter of pelando pavo—otherwise, parading beneath his sweetheart's balcony.

The place was a good enough one, but it offered no prospects. That which he now saw afar off did. There was a Great Man at the head of things in the railway, who had had his eye on Dorsey for some time. He wrote at this juncture, that he was going down to the town where Dorsey was to have a look at things, and he hinted at promotion and change, and at a billet in the City of Mexico. Dorsey knew, very well, what the billet would probably be. It required other qualities besides business ability—social qualities, as the advertisements say. It meant making one's self universally agreeable, and entertaining a good deal. And it was a very desirable thing.

The heart of Dorsey was filled with joy. So far as he knew there were not more than a dozen or so members of his wife's family in the City of Mexico. And the city was large and cosmopolitan and alive. He dreamed rosy dreams and told them to Candalaria. She was not so pleased as he had expected her to be. She would have to have papa and mama, the primos and primas, and all the rest. But Dorsey dwelt tactfully upon the shops of the Calle de San Francisco, the drives in the paseo, and the theatre and opera, and she was cheered.

Then the Great Man came. He brought with him his young wife. Dorsey looked at her. He had a sickening sense, as he did so, that his own birthright had been something such as she, and he began to have a proper understanding of what he had done. He told the Great Man that he had a wife himself—that he had married a Mexican. There passed a shadow across the august brow. Dorsey saw it. That night, however, he took Candalaria to call at the hotel. There was trouble about it. Candalaria did not want to go. Why should she bother about a Gringa who was nothing to her. She wished to go to the plaza instead, and to hear the band. They would go to the plaza afterward, Dorsey compromised.

"With the Gringa? Poes no!" What would her family say to her for picking up any excursionists that came along? Which—knowing Candalaria—was not a promising frame of mind. Dorsey foresaw trouble. And it duly came.

Candalaria took one look at the Great Man's wife, and decided, out of hand, that Dorsey was in love with her. She did not make a scene then and there, but she took what was very nearly as unpleasant a course. She could speak English very passably, but she shut her little crimson lips now and refused to say a word. When the Great Man or his wife spoke to her, she smiled sweetly and shook her pretty head. "No speak English," was the uttermost she would consent to say. Dorsey's rage was—naturally enough, in view of the situation—very great. But it did not blind him to many things, to the contrast for instance, between the smooth brushed locks of the Great Man's wife, and the frizzled strands of those of his own; between the former's supple grace, and the latter's undeniable chunkiness; between the former's chic, and the latter's dowdiness. Candalaria's feet had never looked so like twin flat irons, and never had her waist seemed so square and her skirt so hitched up in front and dragging behind.

In the matter of features and of hands, however, Candalaria had the advantage, unquestionably. Only—Dorsey looked at the face which changed and lighted with every thought; and then he looked at the pretty placid one. He looked at the large, firm fingers and palms, and then at the little, white clawed ones.

When the situation began to get unendurable Dorsey, in reckless despair, decided to brave his wife and all her family, and to take the Gringos to the plaza anyway. Candalaria saw in that not only open disregard of her wishes, an open affront and humiliation, but a ruse to enable him to walk with the Gringa, with whom he was in love, and to exploit her before the town. While the Great Man and his wife went for their hats, Dorsey gave Candalaria a piece of advice.

"You talk to him," he said; "You can do it, and I want you to."

"I am ashamed," she said, "my English is so bad."

"It is not," he contradicted. "It's charming, and I insist that you talk to him."

"May bien," acquiesced Candalaria, "very well."

He should have mistrusted that complacency, Dorsey should.

They walked in the plaza. Then they went to the pasteleria for an ice. Then Dorsey invited them to luncheon the next day. They accepted, and he spent the rest of the night and all the morning devising means and pretexts for getting the black-shawled females out of the way. As for the men, however much he might dislike, he was not ashamed of them. He succeeded so well that there were only two aunts and as many male cousins at the board, and the luncheon went off auspiciously. Dorsey wished the Great Man to see his qualifications as a host, as such were of importance in the post in view. There was only one drawback, which was that Candalaria—having decided that her husband was talking to the Gringa a great deal too much—forgot her English again, and sat in smiling and shrugging stolidity.

After the luncheon, the Great Man drew Dorsey aside, as they smoked their cigars. Dorsey felt that the moment had come.

"Charming little home you have," said the Great Man, glancing about the flowered patio. "A charming wife, and a charming home. What fellow could ask more?"

Dorsey hazarded the opinion that the town, however, was rather dead. The Great Man was a student of the poets as well. He resorted to poetry:

"Death is the end of life; ah, why Should life all labor be?"

And by way of illustration he puffed lazy whiffs of smoke at the flowers of the jasmine vine.

"A man could not ask for nearer heaven than this," he said.

Dorsey wondered if this were just bluff—or—He whipped himself up to the scratch, and said something about the ineradicable American love of work for its own sake.

"When," observed the Great Man, "you have reached my age, you will be content enough to rest."

Then he drew out his watch. They were leaving on the afternoon train for the city, his wife and he. The senora would excuse their haste.

When they had gone Dorsey took Candalaria into the house. He stood in front of her with his fists clenched and his jaws set.

"What," he asked, "did you say in the plaza last night?" It was the only chance she had had. "Don't lie to me. I'll ask him if you do."

Candalaria's crimson lips parted and curled up in a sneer. "Why should I lie? I told him that I would never live in the city because there were too many political people and vulgar Americans there."

Dorsey's jaw was not set now. It dropped. "When you knew that he had come to ask me to go! When you knew that I wanted to—" he said. The lips curled a little more.

"When I knew," she mocked, "that you wanted to be near your Gringa love—"

She threw back her head with a laugh. Dorsey stood and looked at her for a moment. He was a little quailed. Then he went out of the room.

He was down at the station to see the Great Man off. A mozo followed him, bringing a tribute of flowers. The Great Man stood on the rear platform of his private car—the private car of which Dorsey himself might, with another ending, have had the use. As the train pulled off, he waved his hand, and then drifted back to Dorsey amid the rattle and the noise, as the very voice of Opportunity itself, a faint "Good-by."

The Khedive and the Rasal. Even to the adventurers and down-right swindlers who hung about his court at Cairo, and afterward pursued his wanderings, Ismail extended a good natured, half contemptuous patronage. He liked a rogue far better than a fool. Once, when he had formally forbidden his door to a flagrant offender, the man who knew his character, got a ladder and climbed into the viceroys' room, remarking, "I have obeyed your highness' commands, and have crossed your threshold by the window, and not by the door." The humor of the thing at once appealed to Ismail, and the offender was reinstated in his favor.—Athenaeum.

Food for Repentance. Queen Alexandra, when Princess of Wales, came one day upon a tiny mite of a boy crying piteously. He was in charge of a fat and comfortable old lady, who seemed quite unmoved by his grief.

"What is the matter?" inquired the princess, "who is very fond of children."

"Is he ill?"

"Wall, ma'am," said the comfortable old lady, "he isn't hexactly ill, but no stomach can't stand nine buns."—Good Words.

TOMBSTONES THEN AND NOW.

An Old Sexton Regrets That There Is Less Display of Affection Than Formerly.

An old sexton in one of the downtown burial grounds was arranging plants in the old yard where he has been for many years. Coddled a bit he talked, and this, according to the New York Sun, is part of what he said:

"It seems to me that the living of today are no' quite so affectionate about their dead as their forefathers used to be. Leastwise they don't show it on the tombstones."

"If you will examine closely you will find on every tombstone in this yard some tender words. 'Here lies the beloved wife,' there, 'At rest in the bosom of God, over yonder,' 'Fell asleep in Jesus,' again, 'In loving remembrance of a devoted wife,' just beyond, 'In the blessed hope of a glorious immortality.'"

"There is a tribute to every one of the dead in this yard. You will find around the corner a monument erected 'To the memory of a beloved aunt.' You see it made no difference a long time ago what the kinship was. All these stones are not in memory of a husband, or wife, or son, or daughter."

"Do you remember the inscription on that monument away up on Riverside drive, in the shadow of Grant's tomb? 'Erected to the memory of an amiable child' is the reading, although few people ever quote it correctly."

"You will wonder about the cemeteries of New York a long time before you will find an inscription like that. I suppose amiable children still live and die, but who ever thinks of saying so on a tombstone after the child is dead?"

"In the newer cemeteries are many costly monuments and tablets and mausoleums. They are erected, no doubt, with as much affection as these old stones were. But you don't find any of the tender tributes cut on them which you find here, granting that you have to look pretty closely for some of these."

"The 'beloved aunt' hasn't anything of the kind but her memory on the modern tombstone. On some of the costly shafts I have seen in the newer cemeteries I read the name of the dead, his birth and death. Nothing to tell whether the dead was a father, a husband, a brother or a son."

"They say it makes no difference to the dead. Well, that's so, I suppose. But I can't help thinking that it kind of interests the living."

"It makes you think a little better of the world to read that it has remembered a devoted wife; that it has missed a man who passed away in the hope of better things; that the beloved aunt was not forgotten."

"As you pass out through the east gate, sir, you will see a slab on which there is hardly a letter to be deciphered. But before the cuttings were away they read: 'Hic jacet a Noble Friend.' Does any modern stonecutter ever cut 'Hic jacet?' And where will you find a slab or monument to a 'Noble Friend?'"

"The slab's to the left as you go out."

HAD HIS HAND IN IT.

But Not in a Way That Laid the Professor Liable to Any Sort of Discipline.

Considerable scandal was caused at Marietta college recently by a prank, which resulted in the expulsion of several students. One of the professors, who was very unpopular for undergraduate reasons, had been marked out for slaughter for a long time because of his attitude toward athletics.

Prof. X—, the object of the dislike, was near sighted, and at the faculty meetings he was accustomed to creep down the long, dark stairway, feeling his way by the balustrade. It was decided that the best thing to do was to fix the balustrade, and one night while the faculty were meeting upstairs, a thick coat of molasses was laid over the rail. As a result the near-sighted professor met with an unpleasant surprise when he tried to feel his way downstairs in the dark.

The next day a rigid investigation was held. The suspected students were assembled in a room and warned that confession was the only escape from expulsion. Thus admonished, an appeal was made to any one who knew anything about the trick to confess, says the New York Tribune.

One of the culprits rose and said, hesitatingly: "I don't know as I should say anything about this, but I guess I had better make a clean breast of it. I do know some one who had a hand in it."

He paused, as if afraid to continue, while his companions in crime looked at him in amazement.

"Well, who was it?" demanded the college inquisitor, sharply.

"Prof. X—."

Meat Balls.

Take the fat end of meat—a little bacon, ham, mutton and perhaps roast beef, not enough of one kind for any decent dinner—and clear them of all bone and gristle, and chop together fine. Season strongly with sage, salt and pepper. Add one egg to bind, and make into balls just like sausage. Have a skillet hot with a little fat in it, and fry brown on both sides. They resemble sausage very much and are very economical.—Housekeeper.

A Delicious Dessert.

Beat the yolks of seven eggs with three-quarters of a pound of sugar until very light and thick. Add the grated rind of three lemons and stir over the fire in a large double boiler until thick, adding the strained juice of the lemons. When thick and smooth add the whites whipped to a stiff froth, and cut and stir for three minutes longer. Take from the fire and heap in small glasses.—N. Y. Post.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by which Drunkards are Being Cured Daily in Spite of Themselves.

No Noxious Doses. No Weakening of the Nerves. A Pleasant and Positive Cure for the Liquor Habit.

It is now generally known and understood that Drunkenness is a disease and not a weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodic or constant use of intoxicating liquors, requires an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE," which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of Drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men.

WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!

This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of Drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and as many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the "CURE" administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. DO NOT WAIT. Do not be deluged by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "HOME GOLD CURE" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effective than the others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address: Dept. BEING KIND.

In all the books that have been read,
In all the days that come and go,
In all the great things men have said—
What better watchword can we find
Than just: Be kind?

So many faces on the street,
So many wistful eyes that gaze,
So many hearts at home, to beat
In swift response to loving praise—
Who to his brother can be blind?
Let us be kind.

Think, ere the harsh words fall, and wait
A moment, till the frown shall fade;
And to thy heart and to thy gate
God's little ones, all-unafraid
Shall come, and leave all doubts behind;
And so be kind.

There's nothing in the world so sweet,
There's nothing in the world so true,
As when one makes his day complete
By doing what he has to do
With pure contentedness of mind—
By being kind.

His Friend, The Enemy

By WILLIAM WALLACE COOK
Author of "Rogers of Butte," "The Spur of Necessity," "Mr. Pitt, Astrologer," etc.

CHAPTER I.—CONTINUED.

Out in the workroom the red-headed printer had been doing some peculiar things. The moment Guy had left he had thrust the brush end of a broom out through the open window; then, on the reverse side of an old piece of copy, he had written the following:

"Guy Herbert, son of the late Montfort Herbert, arrived in Concord at noon and at this hour—two p.m.—has just left the old man. He's going over to the town meeting to-night to get some pointers. Watch out for him. He's about twenty-two or three, five feet eleven or possibly six feet tall, dark hair and mustache, and looks as though he was built for business."

That was all. The printer neither addressed the note nor signed it, and the moment he finished writing the last word a soft tap fell on the back door. The printer made haste to answer the knock. A man stood outside at the head of the rear staircase—a strapping big fellow with his trousers tucked in his boot tops. He and the printer exchanged winks as the scrap of paper was handed over. Then the big fellow noisily closed the door and removed the broom from the window.

That "leak" was through the stove-pipe hole in the Blizzard office.

CHAPTER II.

IN THE HOSTILE CAMP.

Guy had four hours and a half at his disposal before the freight train left Concord, and he made up his mind that he would put in the time looking over the town. Before descending the decrepit stairs leading from the Blizzard office, he lingered at the top to scan the three points of the compass that lay open to him. As the building occupied by the newspaper was well at the foot of the main thoroughfare, nearly the whole of Concord lay under the young man's eye.

Certainly no eulogies were to be wasted upon that collection of houses and stores. The principal street had roads debouching to left and right. Buildings were not huddled together; on the contrary, they were far apart, with stretches of virgin prairie between them. It had been the policy of the Townsite company to donate a lot in each block in the residence portion to any one who would build a house upon it. For this reason, nearly every dwelling had a block to itself.

Main street began at the Northern Pacific depot and ran south for half a mile beyond the Blizzard building, the latter closing up the ragged file of store structures. Just south of the depot was a huge, barn-like hotel. The hotel, be it observed, always formed the nucleus of the "boom" town. Across from the hotel was the office of a real estate agent; south of that, on the same side, was a building erected by the Townsite company for a bank; then there was a drug store and then Mr. Benjamin Glimmer's Emporium, and then a livery stable, the latter almost opposite the Blizzard building. Between the latter and the hotel was the new courthouse.

As Guy gave further attention to the courthouse he saw something which had before escaped him, namely, a weather vane. This vane was cut into the profile of a man's head, hand before the face, thumb to the nose and digits outspread. The head looked steadily and insolently westward and refused to move with the northwest wind. Guy's anger arose at the sight. He had no idea what such a vane might mean, but he would tolerate nothing of that kind in his town. That vane was to come down in a very short time, even if he had to remove it himself.

Descending the stairs he went over to the Emporium and introduced himself to the proprietor. Mr. Glimmer was a slender man of sallow complexion and looked at the world through iron-framed spectacles. He was glad to meet Guy and presented him to several citizens; among others, Elisha McQuilkin, the postmaster, Lemuel Elkins, a youth of harmless aspect, whose abnormally long and spider-like legs were the standing joke of the town; Christopher Waffle, justice of the peace and proprietor of a threshing outfit, and Bill Comfort, who operated Judge Waffle's engine. Conversation with these gentlemen revealed such a depth of animosity and bitterness over the county-seat question that Guy was surprised.

"The Harmony folks have threatened to come down on us like Assyrians on the fold and run off with the county records," observed Mr. Glimmer, his thin lips compressing and his eyes gleaming through his glasses. "We'll fool 'em if they try it on, I can tell you. I've only to pull this rope!"—he laid his hand on a rope that dangled through a hole in the ceiling—"and a bell on the roof'll ring out a warning and bring every citizen to the new courthouse."

"And every citizen will bring a gun," snapped Waffle.

"And use it if necessary," thundered McQuilkin.

Coming from the fairly peaceable confines of Chicago this warlike language filled Guy with considerable apprehension. It likewise gave him a realizing sense of the danger of the mission he was about to undertake. If the Harmony people were aroused in a similar degree, to be discovered taking notes at their town meeting would mean—Guy refrained from following out this train of thought. He did not care to anticipate the disaster which would probably befall him in case of discovery. Truth to tell, this work was being entered upon against the counsel of his honor. In love and war, however, all means are supposed to be fair and he was endeavoring to apply that principle to the present case. Nevertheless he was troubled.

The 6:30 o'clock freight had a few cases of merchandise for Concord and while these were being unloaded Guy climbed into the caboose on the rear of the train.

"I've counted as many as three people, father," broke upon Guy's ears in a feminine voice that was richly musical.

"One of those is the station agent, Betty, and doesn't count," replied a voice of masculine timbre, so deep it was almost a roar.

Guy discovered the second speaker instantly. He was a large man wearing a black slouch hat and was sitting on a seat that ran along the side of the car, his eyes close to a window and eagerly observing the town.

The other speaker was not so easily located, but Guy found her at last. She was perched on a stool up in the "lookout," or cupola, and was also studying the main street with eager gaze.

"I was going to catch a glimpse of the gallant Colonel," continued the girl, with a ripple of laughter. "Subtract him from Concord and the result is naught."

"Huh!" exclaimed the father, without looking around. "Keever is the biggest cipher in the whole lay-out. Everybody will know that one of these days."

"I can't understand," went on the girl, "why more people haven't come down to see that the train arrives and departs properly."

"Pardon me," put in Guy, whimsically, halting below the young lady and looking up at her, "the people here do not manifest the same interest in a freight that they do in a passenger. Besides, there are two men and a dog behind the depot whom you have overlooked."

The large man at the side of the car switched around and fixed his eyes on the speaker. The girl also turned in her seat in a startled way and looked down.

She was a very handsome girl, her fine, clean-cut features possessing the charm of womanly resolution and firmness. Symmetry was the keynote of face and form, and the eyes, the lips and the square, dimpled chin all told of underlying strength. From the viewpoint of a physiognomist she delighted Guy, and it may be that the joy of his character study betrayed itself, for the young lady suddenly assumed a haughty air which became her amazingly. She vouchsafed him a frigid stare, tossed her head disdainfully, and then—well, just then the train gave a terrific jerk in the uncomfortable manner that all freight trains have, and the young lady was precipitated from her perch fairly and squarely into the young man's arms.

Guy was overwhelmed. Miss Betty bowed her head and her shoulders moved convulsively.

"See how my daughter is affected!" cried Vlandingham. "She understands how much we owe you, Mr. Herbert, and—"

A smothered laugh came from Miss Betty. She looked up presently, straightening her face with an effort. Guy was chagrined. The more he saw of Elizabeth Vlandingham the more he wished they had met under happier circumstances.

"My father, Mr. Herbert," remarked the young lady, "is very anxious to sell our lots. He has forgotten that there are none for sale."

"What?" gasped Vlandingham, aghast.

"After the election the lots will be worth double what they are now, and why should we divide our profits with anyone?"

Miss Betty had a delightfully contrary nature. Had Guy accepted her father's hospitality she would have been set against him; but now that he had determined not to accept, she was equally determined that he should.

"Mr. Herbert," she went on, "allow me to second my father's invitation. We shall be glad to have you stay at Willowview while you are in Harmony."

The witchery of her blue eyes made the temptation a powerful one, yet Guy shook his head. Then the blue eyes grew imperious.

"You must!" declared Miss Betty, and Guy yielded under mental protest.

A few minutes later they were in Harmony, descending from the caboose far below the depot and proceeding "cross lots" toward a large and comfortable looking group of farm buildings framed in a dusky setting of willows. Evening had fallen too dark-picture she was, too, sitting stiffly erect in her injured dignity and looking neither to right nor left. The large man shifted his twinkling eyes from her and gave Guy a wink.

FAIRLY INTO THE YOUNG MAN'S ARMS.

"What's your line?" he asked.

"I don't understand you," returned Guy.

"Drummer, I take it?" The large man squinted about Guy's vicinity as though searching for sample cases.

Guy was annoyed, especially as Miss Betty's sense of the ridiculous prevailed over all and allowed a smile to twitch at the corners of her mouth.

"You are mistaken, sir," said Guy. "I am not a drummer."

"Been long in Concord?"

"A few hours only."

"That was as long as you could stand it, I suppose. Well, I don't blame you. If you want to make a little money during this boom you've got to buy lots in a live town like Harmony. My name's Vlandingham, young man."

Guy had been on the point of saying that he already had more lots than he knew what to do with, but the large man's announcement of his name caused him to take another course. Here undoubtedly was the very Vlandingham who had the county commissioners under his thumb and was the ringleader of the conspiracy to steal the county seat away from Concord. Guy became wary on the instant.

"My name is Herbert, Mr. Vlandingham," said he. "I am going over to have a look at Harmony."

"Mr. Herbert, my daughter, Miss Elizabeth Vlandingham."

The easy familiarity of the northwest had long since claimed Wilbur Vlandingham for its own and he presented the stranger to his daughter with a cheerful disregard of the proprieties. But if he forgot himself Miss Betty was far from being ruled by his example. To Guy's profound bow she returned only the curtest of nods, two little wrinkles between her brows showing her disapproval of her father's actions. Mr. Vlandingham smiled and winked again.

"Harmony," he resumed, "is my town, Mr. Herbert."

"Our town," corrected Miss Betty.

"Certainly, my love," deferred her father; "whatever is mine will some day be yours." He turned once more to Guy. "Harmony is going to have the county seat, Mr. Herbert, and the moment the result of this special election is known lots will go up with a jump." Leaning sideways confidentially he tapped Guy on the knee. "Take my advice. Buy a few lots now before the rise."

"I'll have to think about it," said Guy. "Of course; and while you are thinking about it you are to accept the hospitality of my humble home."

Miss Betty shot a quick glance of protest in her father's direction.

"Really, Mr. Vlandingham," answered Guy, "I couldn't think of such a thing."

It was one thing to prevent his fortunes being wrecked by reconnoitering the enemy, but it is quite another thing to sit at table with the general of the hostile camp and carry the espial into his very household. Guy drew a line at that.

"Nonsense!" cried Vlandingham. "I won't have it any other way. You're going with me and I won't take no for an answer."

"It is impossible," returned Guy, firmly.

"By Jupiter, we'll see about that. In my own town—beg pardon, Betty, our own town—things go about as I—as we—want them to go."

"I appreciate your kindness," said Guy, embarrassed by the persistent nature of Vlandingham's hospitality.

"But I cannot impose upon you."

"Impose! Hear that, Betty? He talks of imposing on me—on us—after saving your life, my girl! Think of how you would now be lying crushed and broken on that car floor but for his heroic assistance! Jupiter! Mr. Herbert, I owe you a debt of gratitude. Buy two lots at the present price and I'll throw in two more. Now then!"

Guy was overwhelmed. Miss Betty bowed her head and her shoulders moved convulsively.

"See how my daughter is affected!" cried Vlandingham. "She understands how much we owe you, Mr. Herbert, and—"

A smothered laugh came from Miss Betty. She looked up presently, straightening her face with an effort. Guy was chagrined. The more he saw of Elizabeth Vlandingham the more he wished they had met under happier circumstances.

"My father, Mr. Herbert," remarked the young lady, "is very anxious to sell our lots. He has forgotten that there are none for sale."

"What?" gasped Vlandingham, aghast.

"After the election the lots will be worth double what they are now, and why should we divide our profits with anyone?"

Miss Betty had a delightfully contrary nature. Had Guy accepted her father's hospitality she would have been set against him; but now that he had determined not to accept, she was equally determined that he should.

"Mr. Herbert," she went on, "allow me to second my father's invitation. We shall be glad to have you stay at Willowview while you are in Harmony."

The witchery of her blue eyes made the temptation a powerful one, yet Guy shook his head. Then the blue eyes grew imperious.

"You must!" declared Miss Betty, and Guy yielded under mental protest.

A few minutes later they were in Harmony, descending from the caboose far below the depot and proceeding "cross lots" toward a large and comfortable looking group of farm buildings framed in a dusky setting of willows. Evening had fallen too darkly for Guy to see very much of this rival town, but assuredly there was nothing in Concord to compare with Wilbur Vlandingham's palatial home. Willowview was a manor comprising in its entirety, almost a thousand broad acres abutting upon the town site. The house was large and neatness personified without and within. Dinner was waiting, and after Guy had removed the cinders and dust with which the short journey by freight train had liberally covered him, he joined Miss Betty and her father in the dining-room. There was only the three of them and Guy was not long in learning that Mrs. Vlandingham had been dead for several years. The daughter had taken the mother's place in the household, and was filling it, if Guy might judge, with eminent credit to herself and supreme satisfaction to her father.

The dinner was charming, Miss Betty made herself most agreeable, and there was no talk of lots, or townsite matters, or anything else that breathed remotely of business or discord. Guy forgot for the time the mission he had undertaken at the Colonel's behest. He was brought to himself, however, with something like a shock, directly after dinner, while he and Mr. Vlandingham were in the parlor listening to Miss Betty's piano playing.

A SPINNING GHOST.

Upon Investigation Proved to Be a Rat Enjoying a Run Around the Wheel.

On the post road in southern New Hampshire stands an old house which was once famous for its ghost. It had been a tavern, owned and managed by two brothers and two sisters named Mason, relates the Youth's Companion.

The youngest of the family, Hannah, had been jilted in her youth. After her desertion she never entered any door save that of her own home, but gave all her strength to hard work. She would hatch flax for weeks, spin unceasingly and weave on a hand loom, without apparently a thought of rest.

She died after a short illness, and still travelers said that their slumbers were disturbed by the whir of the wheel. Soon it was whispered about that the Mason house was haunted. Strange sounds were heard from the garret where Hannah had always worked, and plainest of all was the hum of the great wool wheel.

The brothers heard the story, and at once set out to solve the mystery. Joseph went to the garret and watched. After a time the wheel began to revolve. He struck a light. On the rim of the wheel was a great rat, running around.

Frequent visits to the garret rendered this rat so tame that he would come out on the spinning wheel by daylight, and several others were occasionally seen to take a spin in the wheel, as if it were a pleasant recreation.

A PRINCE'S EDUCATION.

One Thing That Little Edward of York Rebelled Against But Had to Learn.

The present idol of the British public is Prince Edward of York, eldest son of the duke of York, grandson of the prince of Wales, great-grandson of Queen Victoria, and heir in the direct line of the crown of Great Britain. Prince Edward, having been born on June 23, 1894, is now well into his sixth year, and regards himself as quite a big boy, says Youth's Companion.

His brother Albert is a year younger, and the two princes have had, perhaps, their share, but no more, of brotherly "scraps." The duke of York is said not to have interfered with their small wars, saying that to "let them fight it out will make them better men." But he has interfered successfully with another weakness of Prince Edward.

It is customary for the royal children, in meeting the queen, to kiss her hand and not her cheek; but Prince Edward did not like to do this, and objected strenuously. One day he heard some one speak of "her majesty."

"I know who 'her majesty' is," said he; "it's just granny!"

"And who was the naughty little prince who would not kiss granny's hand?"

"That was me," said Prince Edward, unabashed, "and I'm not going to kiss granny's hand!"

But when he had arrived at the age of five he felt himself quite a man, and began to do as other men did—kissed the queen's hand and always doffed his cap in her presence.

Sweetly Innocent.

The ten-year-old daughter of a portly lady seemed overjoyed when her mother promised to take her to a concert on the following evening, and rushing off to her little writing desk, produced a dainty diary and made a few notes in it.

"I should dearly like to see what the darling girl has confided to her diary," said the mother to her husband, when the child had gone to bed. "What do you think?"

"Oh, read it by all means," he answered. "It's sure to be something sweetly innocent."

So the portly lady, not without a few qualms of conscience, opened the newly-blotted entry, which read as follows:

"Tuesday.—Am going to the concert to-morrow with mother. Wish I could leave half of her at home. It's so uncomfortable to sit on the edge of a chair all night."—London Tit-Bits.

Word of Advice.

"How do you like my strain?" queried the long-haired versemaker.

"There'll be no kick coming," replied the busy editor, "if you will promise not to strain yourself again."—Chicago Daily News.

Women and Jewels.

Jewels, candy, flowers, man—that is the order of a woman's preferences. Jewels form a magnet of mighty power to the average woman. Even that greatest of all jewels, health, is often ruined in the strenuous efforts to make or save the money to purchase them. If a woman will risk her health to get a coveted gem, then let her fortify herself against the insidious consequences of coughs, colds and bronchial affections by the regular use of Dr. Boschee's German Syrup. It will promptly arrest consumption in its early stages and heal the affected lungs and bronchial tubes and drive the "r" disease from the system. Let a cure all but it is a certain cure for coughs, colds and all bronchial troubles. You can get Dr. G. Green's reliable remedies at W. T. Brooks'. Get Green's Special Almanac.

The man who gets the corner on fish must be a first-class angler.

Blood.

We live by our blood, and on it. We thrive or starve, as our blood is rich or poor.

There is nothing else to live on or by.

When strength is full and spirits high, we are being refreshed, bone muscle and brain in body and mind, with continual flow of rich blood.

This is health. When weak, in low spirits, no cheer, no spring, when rest is not rest and sleep is no sleep, we are starved; our blood is poor; there is little nutriment in it.

Back of the blood, is food, to keep the blood rich. When it fails, take Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil. It sets the whole body going again—man and woman and child.

If you have not tried it, send for free sample, its agreeable taste will surprise you.

MALARIA An Invisible Enemy to Health

Means bad air, and whether it comes from the low lands and marshes of the country, or the filthy sewers and drain pipes of the cities and towns, its effect upon the human system is the same.

These atmospheric poisons are breathed into the lungs and taken up by the blood, and the foundation of some long, debilitating illness is laid. Chills and fever, chronic dyspepsia, torpid and enlarged liver, kidney troubles, jaundice and biliousness are frequently due to that invisible foe, Malaria. Noxious gases and unhealthy matter collect in the system because the liver and kidneys fail to act, and are poured into the blood current until it becomes so polluted and sluggish that the poisons literally break through the skin, and carbuncles, boils, abscesses, ulcers and various eruptions of an indolent character appear, depleting the system, and threatening life itself. The germs and poisons that so oppress and weaken the body and destroy the life-giving properties of the blood, rendering it thin and watery, must be overcome and carried out of the system before the patient can hope to get rid of Malaria and its effects.

S. S. S. does this and quickly produces an entire change in the blood, reaching every organ and stimulating them to vigorous, healthy action. S. S. S. possesses not only purifying but tonic properties, and the general health improves, and the appetite increases almost from the first dose. There is no Mercury, Potash, Arsenic or other mineral in S. S. S. It is strictly and entirely a vegetable remedy. Write us about your case, and our physicians will gladly help you by their advice to regain your health. Book on blood and skin diseases sent free.

Brain Food Nonsense.

Another ridiculous food fad has been branded by the most competent authorities. They have dispelled the silly notion that one kind of food is needed for brain, another for muscles, and still another for bones. A correct diet will not only nourish a particular part of the body, but it will sustain every other part. Yet however good your food may be, its nutriment is destroyed by indigestion or dyspepsia. You must prepare for their appearance or prevent their coming by taking regular doses of Greens August Flower, the favorite medicine of the healthy millions. A few doses aid digestion, stimulates the liver to healthy action, purifies the blood, and makes you feel buoyant and vigorous. You can get Dr. G. Green's reliable remedies at W. T. Brooks'. A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures CATARRH by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES" the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"SNUFFLES" is the only perfect CATARRH CURE ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and also wonderfully quick to relieve HAY FEVER or COLD IN THE HEAD.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once and write full particulars as to your condition and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE."

A Good Thing.

German Syrup is the special prescription of Dr. A. Boschee, a celebrated German Physician, and is acknowledged to be one of the most fortunate discoveries in Medicine. It quickly cures Coughs, Colds and all Lung troubles of the severest nature, removing, as it does, the cause of the affection and leaving the parts in a strong and healthy condition. It is not an experimental medicine, but has stood the test of years, giving satisfaction in every case, which its rapidly increasing sale every season confirms. Two billion bottles sold annually. Boschee's German Syrup was introduced in the United States in 1868, and is now sold in every town and village in the civilized world. Three doses will relieve any ordinary cough. Price, 75c. Quaint, Queer and Curious Salt Lake City.

The late Col. John Cockerel, in The Cosmopolitan said, "There are three unique cities in America, and one of these is Salt Lake City." It is not only unique in its temple, tabernacle and other Mormon church institutions, but quaint in appearance, with its wide streets, immense blocks and martial rows of shade trees. It has, perhaps more attractions to the square yard than any city in the country, and its climate, while temperate all the year round, is particularly delightful in Summer. The Great Salt Lake, with its magnificent Saltair resort, where the water is "deader and denser" than that in the Dead Sea in Palestine, is an attraction in itself that people come miles to see. There are many cool mountain and lake resorts near by, also numerous very pretty canon and park drives, and hot sulphur springs. Fishing and hunting can be had in every direction. The trip from Denver to Salt Lake City and Ogden, via the Denver & Rio Grande and the Rio Grande Western, is one of unsurpassed pleasure. Here nature is found in her sternest mood and the whole line is a succession of rugged canyons, waterfalls and picturesque valleys. No European trip can compare with it in grandeur of scenery. During the entire Summer there will be low excursion rates to Salt Lake City and contiguous country. It is on the Pacific coast, if that be your destination. Write S. K. Hooper, G. P. & T. A., Denver, Col., for beautifully illustrated pamphlets, etc.
